

Priority Two (II) calls require that a car be dispatched and an officer respond to the scene as soon as possible. The officer will respond immediately while obeying all applicable traffic laws.

Priority Three (III) calls are of a routine or less serious nature. The Communications operator may upgrade or downgrade any call for service depending on the circumstances indicated during the request for service. If a call is upgraded or downgraded (from the set priority), the priority will be broadcast with the appropriate signal. An example of a downgrade would be when a person has requested service to investigate a robbery (Signal 44) a length of time after the robbery occurred. Factors to be considered when altering a priority include the need for immediate response to prevent death or injury or the need for immediate police presence. It is absolutely necessary that the Communications dispatcher, because of knowledge and information of the request for service, control the dispatching order of calls for service. The victim/caller should be advised as to the response of the officer en route to the call. The caller should be advised in the event of an extended response time. Communications will not issue a call for service until an officer is available to respond. All calls for service must be dispatched by the Communications operator. If 200/300 receives an immediate request for service, 200/300 should notify Communications by the quickest means of the immediate request. Communications will then dispatch the request as required.

If the Watch Commander finds it necessary to change the priority of any call, the Watch Commander must accept full responsibility for altering the priority of the call(s).

PHRASES AND WORDS

Radio users are urged to incorporate a code in their operating procedures. The primary purpose of a code is to save time and to avoid confusion or misunderstanding. Security of Communications is a minor advantage, if any at all. Codes are usually readily recognizable, easily understood, and convey maximum meaning in a minimum of time. Dispatchers sometimes find it necessary to explain or amplify a message. When you use words in place of coded signals, you will need to be careful to select terms that are not difficult to understand.

For example, these kinds of words and phrases are:

Poor

Pick up and hold
Do you want
Chase
Chasing
Can't
I will notify
Buy
Call and see
Yes
Get
Want
No
Be advised

Preferred

Apprehend
Advise if Pursue
Pursuing Unable
Will advise
Purchase
Ascertain
Affirmative
Obtain
Desire
Negative

FORMAT FOR LOOKOUTS

The Associated Public Safety Communications Officers have developed and refined standard personal and vehicular descriptions as follows:

VEHICLES - using the acronym "CYMBAL" for description as follows:

- C = Color
- Y = Year
- M = Make
- B = Body Style
- A = And
- L = License

Example: "White/blue 70 Oldsmobile Cutlass 4-door, 95 Ga. GCL215"

If the lookout is via TWX or a written lookout, the Vehicle Identification Number (V.I.N.) should follow the license.

PERSON

- Name (if known)
- Sex
- Race
- Age
- Height
- Weight
- Hair
- Eyes
- Complexion

Plus any distinguishing physical characteristics
 Plus any clothing description

When a lookout is placed over the radio, the above format should be used with the vehicle description to be placed first, followed by the description of the person.

NON- EMERGENCY CALLS

It is a well-known fact that not all calls received by a public service agency are emergency calls. Particularly during the day time hours, a large number of administrative calls will be received by the Communications Center. While these calls may not be of an emergency nature, they are important to the caller. Therefore, it is imperative that these calls are answered as soon as possible and handled as quickly as possible. To help ensure that these incoming administrative calls do not utilize available emergency lines, the Communications Center has a telephone system which separates incoming administrative lines from the incoming emergency (911) lines. Separate lines are also provided for outgoing telephone calls to keep emergency lines clear.

The Communications Operator is an unseen representative of the Police and Fire Departments and the person calling may form his/her opinion of the department based upon the operator who answers their call. All operators should be thoroughly familiar with important telephone numbers likely to be used on his/her shift. Many of these telephone numbers, including telephone numbers to other agencies, are stored in the C.A.D. system.

In the event that a non-emergency call is received on the emergency line, the operator should request that the caller return the call on the non-emergency line for handling. If the flow of incoming calls is light, the call-taker may choose to handle the non-
